The Denver Probate Court is experiencing an increasing number of pro se parties in connection with probate matters in protective proceeding. The Court is not permitted and is not equipped to provide these parties with the legal counsel they need. Not every party who attempts to proceed pro se does so because of poverty. Some parties are justifiably concerned with the hourly rates and open-ended billing system prevalent in the legal profession today.

In order to offer the public a viable alternative, the Denver Probate Court will experiment with a program of “referral” lawyers who will agree to provide legal services on a reduced, fixed-fee basis to parties who appear in the Clerk’s office unrepresented.

Any lawyer desiring to participate in the referral program shall complete the form and submit it to the Probate Court. The fact/fee sheets will be kept on the counter at the Probate Court for public use. By submitting the fact/fee sheet to the Court the attorney agrees to

1. charge only the fee revealed on the fact/fee sheet for the service provided and
2. keep the fact/fee sheet updated at least annually.

Attorneys may list additional services they will provide and the corresponding fixed/fee for those services.
